Independent Study Abroad Guide

Have an Admissions Advisor in the Office of Undergraduate Admissions evaluate your proposed courses to check transferability. The purpose of the evaluation is to review your proposed program and courses, and to advise you in advance about transfer credit policies and potential transfer credit for the courses. The evaluation is informational-it does not obligate you to attend a program. To arrange an evaluation, email Yanny Chavarria at yanny126@berkeley.edu. Be sure to submit the following:

- Study Abroad Proposed Program Evaluation, completed
- Program information
- Course descriptions
- Name of institution issuing transcript
- Any program forms requiring a signature of a study abroad adviser (including financial aid forms). If a form requires disciplinary record information, request this from the Center for Student Conduct in 205 Sproul Hall.

Meet with your college and department advisers to discuss how an Independent Study Abroad program will fit into your academic progress at Berkeley. Will it be necessary to receive department credit for the program to stay on track for graduation? What requirements does the college/school or department have for students participating in an Independent Study Abroad program? Be sure to discuss receiving a registration code for the term after your program (if returning to Berkeley).
