Transfer Credit

<http://advising.ucsc.edu/procedures/transfer-credit.html>

Taking courses at another institution during the summer or while on a leave can be a good way to continue making progress toward your degree. The Office of Admissions determines whether courses taken at different institutions are transferable to a student's UCSC record, and whether they satisfy general education requirements. Major departments determine whether courses deemed transferable from another institution will satisfy major or minor requirements. To identify if courses at California Community Colleges are transferable to UCSC and if they satisfy general education or major requirements, use the statewide ASSIST website. For information about the transferability of courses you hope to take at institutions other than California Community Colleges, use the Evaluation Data System (EDS), or file a Proposed Program Evaluation at <http://admissions.sa.ucsc.edu/ppe>. Please note that it can take up to four weeks for a response to your proposed program evaluation, so it is wise to begin this process early. For information about whether a transferable course will satisfy a requirement for your major, contact an adviser for your major. If you have questions about transfer credit for courses you have already taken and that have already been evaluated by the Admissions Office, request a review by using the Review of Transfer Credit. There are important limitations on transfer credit that you should be aware of -- see The Navigator for more extensive information.
